Junior Show Suppressed

STUDES CLASH WITH FACULTY, TENSION HIGH

Threaten to Attend Formal Dance In Overalls Unless "Hayfield Follies" Go Uncensored.

PATCH STANDS PAT

"We shall not allow the Junior Show to be produced on May 15 unless drastic changes are made in the costumes and some of the lines are deleted," declared Prof. Hatch, chairman of the Social Committee, today.

"The production in its present form is unfit for the public stage and the morals of Storrs must be protected. Unless the demands made by us are met, the show will not be held."

In spite of this determined opposition, however, the Storrs has learned from a reliable source that plans for the Junior week activities are going forward normally.

"We are not bullheaded," says the President of the Social Committee, to-day.

"And some of the lines are to be withdrawn. There can be no compromise. Our demands must be met in full."

"I assert that we shall not allow our Junior Week program to be carried out exactly as announced."

"In Hawley Armory, starting at 9:00 P.M. and lasting as long as anyone is willing to stay, there will be the tea dance."

"In the Auditorium, we have come to a definite agreement with the social committee on this matter, and while we have to make certain minor changes in the amount of kick in the tea, I am in a position to state positively that our original plans will be carried out virtually unchanged."

"This is my decision," says Wilcox.

"It has been called to my attention that there have been certain objections raised to some parts of the Hayfield Follies, which will be produced on Saturday night, but so far as I know, no attempt has been made to block the show."

NEW MOVE LINKS SISTER COLLEGES

We are authorized to announce that, following the recent meeting here of State executives, a reciprocal agreement has been made between the two leading institutions of the State, according to which the students of Harvard and M. I. T. may be admitted to courses in the other college. This agreement is an effective step in the direction of making the two institutions more attractive. It is expected that some of the H. E. courses being offered in the Humanities and Fine Arts will prove popular among the Wethersfield students.

The agreement marks a departure from conventional educational policies and is a fine step forward for Connecticut in first rank among the more liberal states.

Says She Was Picking Flowers But Witness Testifies She Danced Charleston In Cemetery.

"The charges made against me that I have no respect for the dead are absurd," said Miss Hilda Suralandim to a Storrs reporter last night. "I am just a sweet simple girl and I love my mother."

Serious accusations were brought against Miss Suralandim last Tuesday by Frank Tinney, caretaker of the Wildwood cemetery, who declared that the young woman was using the sacred spot as a playground and that he had seen her on several occasions dancing around and over the tomstones and singing popular songs.

It was also alleged by Tinney that she was accompanied on these escapades by a young man whose identity is unknown to him.

"It was only last week," asserted Tinney, "that I saw her perched on top of a headstone with a young fellow and they were both singing 'Red Hot Mama at the top of their lungs. And once before I seen her donn the "Bulle­

GATCHELL PROVES THE PERFECT LOVER

Out of the ruck of mediocrity marking the presentation of three dull plays Thursday night, April 26, by the students of English 17, there emerged a new and luminous star on the local dramatic horizon in the person of Nathan Gatchell, who gave a whirling demonstration of his efficiency in the amatory arts, which left the audience gasping for breath.

"The Dickey Bird" was the vehicle which carried the young star to the greatest success of the present theatrical season. Critics grudgingly admit that he out-Romeoed Romeo and out-shook the young woman was using the sacred spot as a playground and that he had seen her on several occasions dancing around and over the tomstones and singing popular songs. It was also alleged by Tinney that she was accompanied on these escapades by a young man whose identity is unknown to him. THE WEATHER

MURKY WATERS FOIL EFFORTS OF LIFE CREW

PILOT DENIED BAIL

While scores watched helplessly from the shores and a sharp north wind swept down from the snow-covered hills and churned the dangerous waves of Swan Lake into a veritable fury, six went to their death by drowning yesterday when the "Hayfield Bulletin House" was destroyed. All the bodies have been recovered.

Last night six flag-draped caskets rested in the Assembly Room of Holcomb Hall, which has been converted into a temporary morgue. A single candlelighted the room and its flickering rays revealed the watchful attendants and the black-clad mourners of their dead. The only sounds were those of tip-toeing now and then and the muffled sobs of the relatives of those who have gone to meet their Maker.

Tinney Shows Remorse

"No one could have foreseen the occurrence and no one regrets it more than I," said Louis H. Tinney tonight at the Tolland County Jail, where he is being held without bail on a charge of manslaughter. Tinney was at the wheel of the ill-fated craft when it went to pieces in the mud.

Three separate and distinct investigations of the tragedy have inaugurated this morning, one by the Board of Trustees of the Connecticut Agricultural Steamboat Company, owners of the vessel; one by the Connecticut Legislature, and one by the Connecticut State Chamber of Trade. "We intend to get to the bottom of this matter," said H. E. Gooby, president of the latter organization, "and fix the responsibility where it belongs."

RIVAL ACTORS CLASH

O'HECKERSON SAVED WHEN EYE-BROW PENCIL STRIKES SOLID GOLD VANITY CASE

"Assures Success La Petite Theatre Movement," Says William Lyonelps, Classing Attempeted Suicide as "Greatest Public Liquidity Stunt of Age."

Prof. H. A. O'heckerson, actor-manager of "La Petite Theatre," well-known throughout the middle west, was saved from possible death by the conclusion of a heated conference with his company last night, seized an eye-brow pencil and plunged it into his bosom in an unsuccessful attempt at hara-kari. This desperate act fol-owed the termination of a conference of members of this cooperative company held to reconcile the differences between Senor Rudolfo Billippo, tragedian, and "Baby Doll" Dutton, the facile, versatile, and capricious girll comedian.

"Wants to Play Juliet"
The affair was the outgrowth of the recent "La Petite Theatre" management to secure the services of the little white church on the Hill to remodel as a playhouse, with the consent of the company, by discussing plans for financing this popular project when Senor Billippo, who has his elevation to the stage was a house painter's assistant, insisted on being entrusted with carrying out the reconstruction program.

Miss Dutton, seeing in Senor Billippo's action a move to frustrate her schemes, stepped in and offered a small fortune to any young fellow who could come together to complete the plans so far completed.

"How," said Tincup, with conviction, "can we spend the money till we've got it?"

Mary Cain, an understudy, awaking at the mention of her name, said, "I believe Mr. Willey is just right."

"As I see it," said Senor Billippo, feeling that the whole cast was against him in the matter of the entire concern. He had some sharp words for the Adonis-like Romeo, Guillaume Tabou, indicating that he was not very enthusiastic about temptoing to control building plans so as to prevent the construction either of a playhouse or a La Petite Theatre. Charges and counter charges were made. Because to boy's seemed imminent.

At this moment the veteran actor, Mrs. C. I. Hendrickson, appeared and said, "Senor Willey is right."

"Willey Goes Mad"
Mr. Tincup Willey despairingly seized the box, drew the rouge from his storehouse, and cast it on the floor. Proceeding with long-drawn wails, "How can you spend it till you've got it? How can you spend it till you've got it?"
The words, she ran from the dressing room down the alley and into the street.

Professor O'heckerson, feeling his life's work undone by a moment of despair.selected the eye-brow pencil as the object desired and plunged it into his bosom. Only his suit remained in the severe case, the doctors say saved his life.

A vast crowd collected around the tripping pole of which the street. At the top of the pole clung a man of ver-

The Scampus reporter found that Professor O'heckerson's recent attempt at hara-kari was the slit, suffering temporarily from Dementia Dramatisticus.

Special to the Scampus, New Haven. - William Lyonelps today pointed out that Professor O'heckerson's recent attempt at hara-kari was the latest in a series of attempts to finance the reconstruction of the little block of scholarship the best students should be kept in college five or six years longer than the worst graduated in three. And this monstrous reversals are repeated.

"Another serious fault is that the system handicaps athletes. Everyday an athlete is away on a trip he loses credit. If I had my way, whenever a student won a game I would charge him a bonus of twenty-three one-hunderedths of a cent."

"Well," said, picking up a copy of "Snappy Stories" to indicate that the view was Flinck, "I am sure the way to really improve the scholarship is through the library, not the Hall. I believe that that concert even such hopeless prospects as Flinck and Makofski through engagements going research workers."

SIX DIE IN MARINE DISASTER

Various theories as to the cause of the fatal accident were advanced by Capt. Caspar Prim, U. S. Infantry, said that in his opinion the fire was caused by the submarine British steamer. Prof. Wheelock, a noted steamboat engineer, asserted, however, that it was Flinck that had the fatal accident and that the accident must have been the result of a terrible fire. A representative of those familiar with the technical de-

I am taking Sociology and am deeply in love. Need I say more? Oh, if you only knew Mr. S. (I dare not use his name) you would know how I feel. He is so noble, in fact my ideal man. But, of course, he doesn't return my affection. Every lab period is a torture to me. I have even contemplated suicide. Oh, Miss Barefacts, do advise me.

Dear Ruth:

Have you stopped to consider that there are probably twenty others who share your sentiments toward this "noble" young chemist? Every hand that grasps a test tube in the laboratory dothumble with the same emotion which racks your bosom now, Ruth, let your sense of humor come to your rescue. Imagine two other class members who thought the same...even contemplated mor. Thus, the problem is solved.

FORECAST OF SUMMER STYLES

By Beatrice Barefacts

Hairstyles will be on the rise for 1936. We can expect to see a flashy new style in girls' hair, with old favorites returning. New styles will be a great asset to the Weather Lecture courses that Mac writing poetry is made. The course will be a great asset to the Weather Lecture courses that were intended to be taught only with stripes. Should the Weathersfield Bob become popular, locally the effect on skirts will be pronounced, but at this writing style dispatches from Holcomb Hall indicate a new and longer tendencies in hair and gowns. The foreshortened young woman will allow an extra inch and a half of material for her next costume. The skirt can be hemmed up if necessary.

Sincerely yours,

Beatrice Barefacts.

OOF OUR DAILY RECIPE

C. A. C. ENSEMBLE

A simple meal which will make use of all the left-overs on your pantry shelf.

One slice of Holstein. Add several Murphys. Flavor with Mints.

Then add a Reveridge from our own Oast; amount to be governed by taste. (It will probably be improved by adding a little Molasses.)

Place in Baker and Cook until your sugar's all Jello and set in Snow to Kahl.

Garnish with any stray nuts you can find and your meat is done. All that remains now is the Service.

DAILY BEAUTY CHAT

Beauty, a young woman's prime consideration in life, is neglected in most college courses. Laboratory work, in fact, is likely to be positively disastrous in effect. The time has come for re-shaping Home Economics courses in line with common sense. Sewing, particularly, is harmful. It strains the eyes and eyes are a college girl's chief assets. Smoking ruins the complexion. Steam opens up the pores of the skin in a way for damage which no number of "facials" can repair.

Botany is one course that may well be retained, with modifications. The study of botany consists in gathering wild flowers in the green fields and pressing them (the flowers—not the fields) in the dictionary. Bending over to pick flowers develops certain body muscles necessary to grace in carriage. However, this should not be overdone. In fact, bending more than twice times in any one day is definitely inadvisable. To guard against this, each young woman should be accompanied by a male escort to pick any flowers in excess of her daily dozen.

Learning that several uses of notebooks should be avoided, as taking notes tends to make one round-shouldered. The study of English is excellent, providing it does not excite the imagination so as to induce insomnia. Some sensitive temperaments cannot stand the subjected matter in our English courses.

It should be said in general that if the personality of any instructor has an unsettling effect, the course should be dropped at once. French is an eminently suitable subject for young women. It enables one to read the French style books in the original.

There still remains a wealth of material for obtaining a well-rounded education without that sacrifice of beauty which has been so marked in our women's colleges.

Sincerely yours,

Beatrice Barefacts.

Time List to Order

Tje frequenters of McCurdy's A. C. had a rare treat last Wednesday night when Jilling Kid Seckton kayoed Dynamite Dan Patch in the third round of the annual dual meet.

The sky was dark, deep, and dense. Field lights glinted off the shiny track which had recently been scrubbed well. The spectators, numbering over five hundred, filled the stands and the track was barely visible through the fog. A light mist settled over the track, making it difficult to see the runners clearly.

The track was a long, straight stretch of grey, with offers to the crowds on either side. The stands were packed, the noise level high. The smell of sweat and dust filled the air, and the sound of leather against wood echoed through the stands.

The race began with a bang. The gun was fired, and the runners took off down the track, their legs pumping furiously. The lead changed hands several times, with the crowd cheering wildly each time someone moved up in the rankings.

It wasn't until the final stretch that the tension reached a fever pitch. The runners were practically shoulder-to-shoulder as they approached the finish line. The crowd held its breath, waiting to see who would come out on top.

Suddenly, there was a burst of cheers from the stands. Dynamite Dan Patch had pulled ahead, his lead growing with each stride.

The crowd erupted into a deafening chant as they watched the black stallion cross the finish line. The overjoyed owner, a man who had dedicated his life to horse racing, held up his arm in triumph. The entire track was alive with the sound of triumphant applause.

CAPACITY CROWD CLOSES CONQUERED CINDERELLES

The field had filled up to capacity, with crowds of people gathered around the track, their faces lit up with anticipation. The atmosphere was electric, with everyone eager to see the outcome of the race.

The race began with Dynamite Dan Patch leading the way. His muscles flexed under his sleek coat, and his mane flowed with each step. The other runners were close behind,拼死地追赶他，但是都无法与他匹敌。

The Connecticut Aggies won another baseball game Wednesday, defeating Clark 7 to 2 in a game chiefly featured by the majestic hitting of "Pop" Williams and heavy slugging by the entire Aggie team. The Aggies registered sixteen hits, including four in four by Schofield and three each by Milbry and Williams. Eddy pitched a complete game, edging six innings, allowing four hits and Makofski three innings with one hit.

Great excitement has been aroused by the Home Egg Laying Contest. Coach Harkle has issued a call for the raising of "Pop" Williams and heavy slugging by the entire Aggie team. The Aggies registered sixteen hits, including four in four by Schofield and three each by Milbry and Williams. Eddy pitched a complete game, edging six innings, allowing four hits and Makofski three innings with one hit.

An account of the greatest obstruction race of the season never seems to make its appearance in these columns. It is a great feat to run a half mile from the college orchard when loaded down with a sack of apples.

"Ain't Nature beautiful!" This quantity original exclamation is heard almost every day in Storrs, now that May seems determined to linger no longer in the lap of winter.

Already, the grass is springing upward, lured forth by warm days and gentle rain. How welcome is the grass! It is the first green thing we have seen since the class of '29 registered last fall.

With the coming of spring, Storrs' famous chain of lakes has been opened to navigation. From the distant shore of the Fenton come some astounding stories of trout bagged by the piscatorial experts of Storrs. It is claimed that the students catch the most fish but the faculty certainly has the edge on fish stories.

Buds are in evidence about the campus and out at the orchards. In fact about the only thing in Storrs that has ceased to bud is genius. Gay: Productive Horse Husbandry

A good yarn, but slightly Victorian in atmosphere. The plot jogs along a little slowly for our modern taste, but near the end of the tale (or, as the author quaintly spells it, "tail") you will get kick enough to satisfy the most sophisticated. As the title implies, the love interest centers in the male element in conjugality rather than (as is more usual) in the female. But after all, why shouldn't it? Doesn't even Shakespeare say "There's husbandry in heaven!" We believe that romance has too long been regarded as a solely female attribute. Heart-hungry husbands of the world, unite!

Sinnott and Dunn: Principles of Genetics

We do not approve of this book. Even the fact that it has been excluded from the mails does not make it worth reading. It is thinner on plot and thicker on propaganda than Wells in his most Olympian moods. To be frank, it is over-sexed. Why should we call attention so continuously and so shamelessly to the mysteries of reproduction? As Heine (or was it Goethe) has so beautifully put it, "Hunger and love make the world go 'round." For our part, we are content to let them do it, and not to throw any eugenical monkey-wrenches into the machinery. How tame and superficial all romance will be when the climax of a courtship is the issuance to the loving couple of a certificate of eugenical respectability on their ancestry and when, as they rush into each others' arms, all they can find to say are the concluding words of the hero and heroine in this book, "So's YOUR old man!"

Holmes: General Chemistry

Holmes is one of the best of our younger poets of the ultra-modern school and between the covers of his latest little book lies some of his most successful work. We who are intellectually emancipated have rejoiced to see up-to-date versifiers boldly abandon the outworn forms and rhythms of Keats and Tennyson and experiment with VERS LIBRE in its many and fascinating variations. Gertrude Stein has been recognized for some time as the boldest of these pioneers but we feel that she must now yield to Holmes and his molecular school of verse. Stein uses words divorced from their meaning. Holmes goes her one better by replacing words with symbols. His syntax is remarkable. He senses the electronic vibrations of the universe.

Crows

In a field in sunny Spain stands a stone mortar. Crows hover around it, picking up bits of grain and chaff scawing.

Here Marcheta, in the fresh beauty of her youth, will come to pound maize. For years she will pound maize. The stone will stand up under the blows; not a dent has the muscle of three generations of women made upon it. But the crows will hurl their black gibes upon a woman aging early and bent with toil. Old Marcheta—still in her thirties. The American woman does not pound maize. But she still beats carpet; she still pounds clothes; she still pumps water. She exhausts her strength in tasks which electricity can do better, and in half the time.

The high ideals of a community mean little where woman is still doomed to drudgery. But the miracles which electricity already has performed indicate but a fraction of the vast possibilities for better living and the tremendous opportunities which the future developments in electricity will hold for the college man and woman.

A. C., regardless of color, sex, or previous condition of servitude. It has seemed to me that too much emphasis has been placed on the problems of the men students, and not enough on those of our fair co-eds. I have been working on a plan to incorporate physical exercise, interesting pastime, and worthwhile results into one class for the girls. It has been a serious problem. However, I early decided that the most important problem facing our co-ed students is that of securing a living, and the easiest way for most of them to do this is to capture a man to earn it for them. My observations of co-ed life have convinced me that this is the primary purpose of most of our female students in choosing a co-educational college. "As a result I decided that any new sport which was to combine the necessary features must also contribute toward the procuring of a husband. "It has been a difficult task, but at last I believe I have solved it. We have now started to instruct the co-eds in the arts of Dan Cupid, and we are running regular classes under the supervision of the Department of Physical Education in Archery. Some of our most accomplished co-eds have already reached a degree of expertise such that it is dangerous for the men to pass by during the practice.

SIXTY SHEEPSKINS
FOR SENIOR SAGES

Unless British Strike Intervenes, Commencement at Storrs Will Be Held On June 12.

Commencement plans are rapidly maturing. Confidential information from the Secretary's office indicates that the Faculty intends to graduate as many as possible of this year's Senior class so as not to be burdened with them next year.

Among the sixty, more or less, who will receive diplomas on June 12 are a goodly share of what is popularly known as "the sweet girl set." It is rumored that some of them will also qualify as "Bushman beauty." June is the month when green things are at their best, and is very appropriately chosen for commencements and weddings.

The Commencement Address is to be delivered Saturday morning, June 12, by Dr. James Gordon Gillery of Springfield, Mass. There will be a ball game in the afternoon between the well known Aggies and the Submarine Base at New London and the day will close with the annual Alumni Dance.

Commencement Week begins Sunday, June 6, with the Baccalaureate Sermon. No announcement has been made of the speaker for this occasion, but it is known that the managing editor of The Scampus has offered his services. The Community House will be dedicated Sunday afternoon. The President's Reception of the Seniors will be held Thursday, June 10. Friday, June 11, is Class Day. The new dormitory for men will be dedicated on that day and the baseball team from Massachusetts Agricultural College will be offered for sacrifice on the altar of Class Day.

It is understood that the annual custom of decorating members of the graduating class with sheepskins will be observed this year. Some persons profess to see in this custom a taint of the old-time traditions, but the truth is, the sheepskin is only a symbol of what the cold, hard world holds in store for the sweet girl and sweet boy graduates. However, we haven't heard of any sheepskins being refused.

C.A.C. CLOSES MAY 11
For One Day

It is understood that at a recent meeting of the Faculty a general strike of professors, assistant professors, instructors and all members of the teaching staff was declared effective May 11.

Up to the time of going to press, all efforts of the student body to get the Faculty to rescind this action had proved futile. The Student Senate in an all-night session with the Faculty Committee on Social Activities attempted to work out a plan of accommodation but their efforts were scorned.

Barred from the classrooms, the students expect to turn their attention to the athletic field. The work of grading the new field started last year will be completed. The personnel in charge consists of Lewis, Moreland, Makofski, and Moore.

The Connecticut Sheep Breeders' Association is to hold a shearing contest at Spring Hill on Saturday, a chance to get a sheepskin, Aggies.

The Issac Walton of Storrs have taken an interest in life since several thousand tame trout were planted in the Pontoosuc this spring. Now comes the cheering news that the Fish and Game Commission is to stock Mirror Lake with all-day suckers. At promptly chosen for commencements and weddings. The Animal Husbandry students were in getting the old meeting house for a practice theatre it will introduce some of the actors and actors in the side of a church.

The campus office in the Armory tower is said to run a close second to the cemetery in the necking league. Of course, that is just hearsay.

"Wally" Moreland and "Slivers" Allard have invested in a one-seated 44 car. Great thing for these moon-light nights, girls!

Howard Steel, freshman, met with a serious accident recently. While riding a bicycle to Willimantic one night he had the misfortune to run over and roll white kitty. Next day his best suit of clothes was hanging on a line back of Koons Hall.

The Saturday night picture at the Armory is "Irish Luck." The advance advertising indicates that it is a story of the adventures in Ireland of a landlady, Makofski, and Moore.

The Connecticut Sheep Breeders' Association is to hold a shearing contest at Spring Hill on Saturday, a chance to get a sheepskin, Aggies.

ANTICIPATION of the year's events

HORSE SENSE

By Arthur Diddin

Shirt Sleeves

By H. K. D.

(Apologies to Dr. Frank Crane)

The other day I visited Connenecticut Agricultural College.

I was pleased to find Faculty and students all in shirt sleeves.

This is as it should be. Here is the Hope of America. Here are no frills. The secret of success is work. The badge of work is a shirt and overalls. Study at night and work in the day—this is why I found everyone happy and gay. Girls, too, in smocks and bloomers, driving the primitive oxen. I had despaired of the Republic. Hard streets, acnemic tollers, rouged flaps,

the Charleston.1 fied

Here was a clean bath in clean dirt. The soil, that's the thing.

Occasionally at night, a barn dance. Hayseeds, No, No,—

the seed of the strength of the nation-to-be.

It interested me to learn that at College Commencement the Faculty do not wear Capa and Gowns. They attend in the garb of every day, save of course, that the shirts and overalls are clean. Here is simplicity. Here is Cato come to judge. A noble Roman Senator, once tripped on his gown and fell dead. All such accidents are avoided here.

They have a Forestry Department here and it is wonterful to hear the class recite

in unison. "Woodsmen, spare that tree," These voices, I said, would be sometime heard in the senate halls. Here, too, is the national egg-laying contest and when I asked the age-old question "Which comes first, the chicken or the egg?" I received the remarkable answer— "They come together, you see." (Here

Mr. H. K. D. has stumbled on something very profound—evidently unwritten.)

Two frogs fell into a pail of milk. The one meekly surrendered; the other kicked and kicked until he found himself on the top of butter worth fifty cents a pound. It is this perseverance I found at this college and which I urge on the nation.

Let us all return to the healing dirt. Let smocks and shirt sleeves, and overalls come again to their own. Captains of Industry, conquerors, strong men of war, civilians by force, ploughmen of the world now!

Make way for better and greater men and women.

By RUDOLPH LANG

It was rapidly growing dark and all the little chicks were gathered about

Mama and Papa Henny. "Tell us a true story, Papa Henny," said one little chick. "Yes, boys," Father

other, "tell us about the wiffnpoofs,

the retternishes of the mouse,

"Papa Henny looked at Mama Henny:

Mama Henny replied with an indulgent smile and nodded assent. "All right,

little chicks," said Papa Henny, "gather up close to me and listen!" So all the little chicks clapped their hands in glee, and moved as near as they could to Papa Henny, because you know, boys and girls, they did not wish to lose one word of Papa Henny's story.

Papa Henny began:

"Once upon a time (course you kiddies know these things always happen once upon a time). Well, once upon a time there lived in the land of Los

Storrs a great hunter called Long

Lee. Every day a great hunter traveled afar in strange lands to kill ferocious beasts.

"One day when Long Lee was trauling a kriddlesniffer he became lost in a vast desert. Tired and worn, he was struggling around the edge of a massive iceberg; he stepped around a projecting wall, and suddenly a huge retternish leaped up in front of him, and let out such a tremendous vibration cracked the top of the iceberg, sending a shower of ice chunks tumbling to the base.

"Long Lee saw the huge rettern-sniffer gather his muscles for a spring at him, but just as the beast was about to spring a great ice chunk fell. Lee and the ugly monster, saving himself in a few moments."

"The brief respite gave Long Lee time to examine his gun. To his horror, he found that his gun was clean, powder, but that his bullets were hot.

He looked up and saw the great jaws of the huge animal move toward him around the edge of the ice cake. It was a terrible moment. No bullets!

What could he do? Beads of perspiration gathered on his brow and as they fell toward the ground the Intense cold caused them to freeze in midair and they fell upon the ground in little ice pellets. Long Lee watched the approach of the huge animal, its great jaws gaping and disclosing fangs

of snow."

"With sudden inspiration Lee stopppped, gathered up the frozen pellets, raincoat, and there was a tuteful aim at the retternish as it rea-ded to strike the heat of the explosion melted the pellets, and they poured forth from the muzzle in a stream of water, but again the intense cold caused the steam to freeze in midair and it forced the animal's head. The heat of the beast melted

the ice and the poor retternsniffch died of water on the brain.

"And now, little kiddies, if you will come behind me you can listen to

Hart to tell you a story about Molly

Cotton Tail, or the Indian with Two Camo's. If you are good little kidde-

this week."
