Dr. Chase.

Daniel Chase, who recently took charge of the newly formed Department of Rural Leadership at the Connecticut Agricultural College, comes to us from Hamilton College in New York State, where he was physical director and associate professor in hygiene.

Mr. Chase was graduated from the University of Maine in 1908 with the degree of A. B., and took his M. S. at Hamilton in 1909. He has since engaged in agricultural education, acting as instructor and assistant professor in Maine and New York colleges.

Mr. Chase is in his third year through the collegiate physical education, and president of his class the same year.

In the track meet to be held in the armory November 15, the general idea of the meet is this:

- There will be no interclass contests in any of the upper classes.
- There will be no association football, and student labor will be used as far as is practical, to print the Alumni News of the class of 1918.
- For two summers he has been instructor in the School of Rural Leadership at Cornell University.

Besides the innovations already made by the department, new classes will be added next year. Mr. Chase favors association football and as one of the cause founders of his gym classes, inasmuch as it can be played out of doors till as late as Christmas.

The classes in Gym work to begin with are to be restricted to the Sophomore and Junior men, but in time the requirements for attendance at these classes will be extended to include the two upper classes. Any junior classman may enroll in the second-year-class class with the Sophomore class as long as he attends regularly. The Hampton class is to be the care of the department of Physical Education and student labor will be used as far as is necessary.

When asked as to the part which the department would play in regard to football efficiency, Mr. Chase said that for his department to oppose inter-class sports, and that football efficiency is the only care of training rules for the football men.

Mr. Chase favors association football and he has selected the Benevolent as his department. It is not to be the policy of the department to oppose inter-class sports, but in time the requirement will be a secondary matter to the care of training rules for the football men.

A Word from the Wise.

The following words are an extract from "How to Succeed in College," by the late President Burckham of the University of Vermont:

"Go everywhere in everything except regular college duties until you get your bearings and make a change of mind and decide your course with some deliberation. It is all a new life and serious mistakes are easily made.

Alumni Attention.

It will be the policy of the Campus, so far as is practical, to print the Alumni News of classes. For this reason all are requested to send notices and notes for publication to Walter T. Clark, Alumni Editor, who will classify them by classes. An Alumni Department is never successful unless all cooperate to make it so. If each and every one of the Alumni will do his best this feature of the Campus will be a success.

1915 Alumni Notes.

W. T. Ackerman is on his home place.
A. F. Aulick has secured work as orchardist on Bridgeport’s City Farm.
T. R. Bailey is at his home in New Haven.
G. R. Blake worked during the summer in the market-gardens of Maryland. He is at present working on the new faculty cottages.
H. E. Blackledge is doing his favorite Horticultural work on an estate at Greens Farms.

THE AGRICULTURAL CLUB AT CONNECTICUT.

By L. F. Lawrence, '17.

It seems fitting, under the circumstances, to take a little time and space in which better to acquaint our new men with the Agricultural Club--its purpose, aims and ideals.

It is difficult to say just where and when the germ of the Agricultural Club came into existence. Probably it had always existed--all it needed was a little stimulation.

The stimulation came to the Connecticut Agricultural College at an indefinite period--probably in the latter part of 1907 or the spring of 1908. From all appearances the stimulus was not strong enough or the time was inopportune. At any rate, the idea, or rather the suggestion, failed to mature.

The seed had been sown, however, and three years later it bore fruit. A few of the men had been interested in the formation of a club and had worked hard to achieve that end. In the early spring of 1911 a letter was received from the New England Federation of Agricultural Students, urging that a delegate be sent to the convention soon to be held at Durham, N. H.

By this time the students had become convinced that an Agricultural Club was an essential to the development of the college and this letter served to fix the idea.

On the 21st day of March, 1911, a meeting was called for the purpose of organizing and to elect a delegate to the convention. Quite a number of the fellows turned out and an enthusiastic meeting resulted. Beach and Professor Truman were present and aided materially with their valuable suggestions. A delegate was elected and after plans for the new club had been discussed, the meeting adjourned.

The club seemed to fill a long-felt want of the students and was enthusiastically received. On May 3, a constitution was read, adopted and signed by thirty-five charter members. Such were the beginnings of the Agricultural Club of the Connecticut Agricultural College.

Assuredly, the Agricultural Club need not offer an excuse for existing in any agricultural college. It is as essential to a college like ours as it is a Political Club to a political party. The two go hand in hand and the presence of one is of inestimable value to the other.

The preamble of the constitution adopted in 1911 reads as follows: "We, the members of the Connecticut Agricultural Club of the Connecticut College, in order to secure a higher degree of social, literary and scientific knowledge, to discuss agricultural topics and familiarize ourselves with the use of Parliamentary law, do ordain and establish this constitution and the by-laws."

The Agricultural Club of today goes...
More Feed Per Acre

The cost of producing meat or milk would be much less if it required less acres to produce the feed. Both the quantity and quality of the feed improve when the right plant foods are used to supplement the manure and clover. They improve enough to yield a handsome profit on the expenditure.

The right plant food includes enough in available form. Supplement the manure and phosphate with 50 to 100 pounds of Murate of Potash, or 200 to 400 pounds of Kainit, per acre, and you will raise big corn and fine clover after the grain and at the same time improve the fertility of the soil.

Try Potash alone on the swamp land pasture and note the clover and good grasses crowd out the wild bar. Write us for price of Potash, one bag up.

farther than that. It is the Agricultural Club that gives to Connecticut the bait of the Convention of the New England Federation of Agricultural Clubs and thereby recognition among the agricultural colleges of the country. It is the Agricultural Club that sends the judging teams to Brockton for the Live-stock Show, to Worcester for the Corn and Fruit Show, to Boston for the Poultry Show and finally it will be the Agricultural Club that will send a team—the first team to go from Connecticut—to the next National Dairy Show at Chicago.

The Club also makes provision for the entertainment and education of those not fortunate enough to make the judging teams. Each Fall a Corn and Fruit Show is held and in the spring comes a stock-judging contest. Both of these affairs, while of but recent origin, have been appreciated by the students and it is the aim of the Club to continue them this year with the addition of several new features which will undoubtedly make them doubly attractive.

In a brief way we have attempted to outline the aims of the Club. They are quite feasible and with the whole-hearted cooperation of the students, the year 1915-1916 will go down in the annals of the Agricultural Club as one of, if not the most successful in its history.

DE LAVAL SEPARATORS
are by far the most Economical.

REAL ECONOMY is never shortsighted. It never confuses PRICE with VALUE.

PRICE is what you pay for an article.

VALUE depends upon the amount and quality of service the article gives you.

YOU GET by far the greatest actual value for your money when you buy a De Laval—BECAUSE a De Laval will give you much better and longer SERVICE than any other cream separator.

From the standpoint of its greater durability alone the De Laval is the most economical cream separator to buy, and when you also take into consideration its cleaner skimming, easier running, greater capacity and less cost for repairs, the price of the "cheapest" machine on the market is most exorbitant compared with that of the De Laval.

And there is no reason why you should let its FIRST COST stand in the way either, because the De Laval may be purchased on such liberal terms that it will actually pay for itself out of its own savings.

A De Laval Catalog, to be had for the asking, tells more fully why the De Laval is the most economical cream separator, or the nearest local De Laval agent will be glad to explain this and many other points of De Laval superiority. If you don't know the nearest local agent, simply write the nearest De Laval main office as below.
