Corn and Fruit Show.

The Second Annual Corn and Fruit Show was held Friday, December 3, in the Hawley Armory. The student committee who were in charge were able to cope with the smoothness with which the entire program was carried on.

Besides the student exhibits of home-grown and selected corn, potatoes, apples and grains, the following departments of the college exhibited: the Horticulture Department, with a large collection of potatoes, grain and corn grown upon the station fields; the Farm Department, with corn and potatoes which were selected; the Fruit Department, which also raised some very fine yellow dent corn brought from Maryland by Mr. Garrigus. The young ladies of the Home Economics Department also arranged under the direction of Mr. G. W. Fraser a very nice exhibit of flowers and fruits grown upon every year to furnish judges for the contest and for the competition was very encouraging in view of the fact that at times only one of the shelf, the competition was very exciting. The Boys' and Girls' Clubs of Mansfield had a very nice exhibit arranged under the direction of Mr. Brundage and Miss Sprague.

The feature that attracted the most attention of all was the display of flowers and bedding plants made by the Senior Class in Greenhouse Management under the direction of Mr. G. W. Fraser. The exhibit was arranged in the form of an old-fashioned garden with beds, walks and seats all in place. A decidedly novel feature was the rare wall-flower group at the back of the stage which was on exhibition for a considerable length of time. A collection of salons was also shown on the bence.

The student exhibits were in number far beyond that of last year. Many were the persons who had declared themselves interested. Until more can show their interest by actually placing exhibits, the show will not contain much value. The date should be set forward about a month and the management should be placed in the hands of one of the departments to insure its success as an annual affair. A large number of men were entered in the judging contest and this is very encouraging in view of the fact that the college is called upon every year to furnish judges for many small fairs and cannot always send instructors, but must sometimes fall back upon some of the students. Contests of this sort help train men a great deal and it may lead in time to the establishment of a regular course in fruit and vegetable judging.

The silver cup offered by Prof. Wm. F. Slater, Jr., the head of the Agronomy Department, was awarded to Minor, '16, who made the score of 392 out of a possible 418. Second and third places were taken by Hussey, '16, and Rice, '16, with respective scores of 385 and 362.

The prizes for the contest and for the placings awarded to exhibitors, were Dr. Jones of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, and Mr. S. P. Hoffman, Hanson RF Shea, Murdock Dickson, (capt.) RF Shea, Barlow 1, and Norton 1; goals from foul: Harmon 10 out of 19, Dickinson 3 out of 10; referee, Ladson of Colgate; time of halves, 10 minutes.

"THE COLLEGE."

PROFESSOR B. P. KOONS.
"Faded Glory" (of Decem ber,

On December 17, 1903, our college was called upon to mourn the untimely death of one of its best instructors, BENJAMIN FRANKLIN KOONS. Professor Koons had worn the gray for over a year, but the serious nature of his complaint was not discovered until July. New York specialists used X-ray treatment and for a while there was hope of his recovery; but his malady had reached too advanced a stage to respond, and early in November he returned to his home in Storrs, there to await the inevitable end.

Professor Koons was born September 8, 1849, at Sulphur Springs, Ohio. He was one of a large family of children and early in life started out to win his own way. At the age of seventeen he became a volunteer in the 12th Regiment of Ohio, in which he served till the close of the Civil War. During this time he took part in several engagements, some of the most famous of which were Winchester, Cedar Creek and Appomattox.

Like many others of our best and bravest soldiers, Mr. Koons was above all a modest man, and it was only with those with whom he held a bond of sympathy that he could be persuaded to fight his battles o'er again. None of those, however, who have been privileged thus to listen to him will ever forget the vivid recital of the deeds of his well-loved regiment. That it was always well to the front, we may know from so reliable an authority as Grant himself. In his "Personal Memoirs" he thus speaks of its bravery at High Bridge, one of the closing engagements of the war. It was detailed later, with one other regiment, the two forming about 600 men, to intercept Washburn on his way to reinforce Lee. To question what happened after the loss upon the enemy more than equal to their entire number; and at the close of the conflict nearly every officer of the command, and most of the rank and file, had been either killed or

Men with Broad Vision

The men in the dairy business with broad vision clearly hold to the policy that a clean dairy is a paying business and yet closely related to it, also appreciate the importance of sanitation in the dairy business.

Just as men of broad vision proved the inadvisability of soap and soap powders for washing milk utensils, so other men of broad vision discovered and produced a material that is adequate for dairy cleaning. That material is Wyandotte Dairyman's Cleaner and Cleanser lends itself to your consideration because it is just the kind of cleaner you naturally would expect men closely acquainted with the demands of modern dairy sanitation to produce. It positively cleans, cleans, and it is harmless to milk. It has no soapy element, no organic grease of any kind. It makes no suds and therefore leaves neither soapy films or grease nor soapy odors. It has no other objectionable property. As you will readily discover, Wyandotte Dairyman's Cleaner and Cleanser is more than merely a cleaner—it also sweetens and purifies the impurities of the creaminess and wholenessness that is a delight to every progressive dairyman.

The calmness with which he looked into the future, the patience with which he bore his intense sufferings, and the thoughtful care which he showed to the very last for those around him, will never be forgotten. "No passed the strong, heroic soul away": and I believe it to be true that not only was he the beloved General, whose name he always mentioned, but that his last battle, the calmness with which he looked into the future, the patience with which he bore his intense sufferings, and the thoughtfulness which he showed to the very last for those around him, will never be forgotten. "No passed the strong, heroic soul away": and I believe it to be true that not only was he the beloved instructor of many, but if questioned as to what was his first source of inspiration toward honorable success, they might reply, as one was once said to have done on a former occasion, "I had a friend." —Edwin Whitney.
