DEALING WITH STATES OF MIND

CAST SELECTED FOR FIRST DRAMATIC CLUB PLAY

Five Students to Star in "The Tyranny of Tears"

The cast for "The Tyranny of Tears" which will be presented by the Dramatic Club on November 24, has been selected by Miss A. M. Wallace. William F. Mahoney will play the role of Mr. Parbury, while Miss Loretta Guilfoyle will be his wife (in the play). Paul Manwaring will assume the role of Colonel Armitage, Mrs. Parbury's father, and Earl Cranston will portray Mr. George Gunnung, an old college chum of the present henpecked Mr. Parbury. For a stenographer, Mr. Parbury will have Miss Kay Potter, as Miss Hyacinth Woodward, and Robert Hughes will be his butler, Evans.

Freshman tryouts for the Dramatic Club will be held tomorrow in accordance with the program of "The Tyranny of Tears." This play will show the new students just how important dramatics are in College, and many will try out for the Club.

TO PURIFY WATER SUPPLY

With the arrival of the necessary machinery, the work of disinfecting the present water supply will be immediately begun. The Bacteriological department has recently tested the water supply, and found it to be in need of improvement. The automatic machine to be used will, by the use of chlorine, thoroughly sterilize the water. The strength of the chlorine to be used is shown by the fact that one millionth part of chlorine will disinfect 1,000,000 cu. cm. of water. It might be of interest to note that the amount of water contained in 25,000 gallons of water a day is 75,000 notes.

George A. Blake, aided by the Bacteriological department will conduct the work.

POULTRY NOTES

With the exception of a pen of cockerels, all of the birds at the old poultry plant have now been moved into winter quarters at the new poultry plant. This plant is to be devoted to experimental work and now contains 875 birds.

In conjunction with Dr. L. F. Rettger of Yale, the department is now carrying on an experiment designed to overcome the fatal effects of chicken pox. Several young cockerels have been inoculated with the disease and when it has developed to its proper stage, swabs are removed and sent to Dr. Rettger. Dr. Rettger is making a virus which he believes will be effective in preventing chicken pox.

The Bacteriological department is to inoculate all the birds in the new contest with this virus. It is thus hoped to prevent another outbreak of chicken pox such as the contest birds suffered from last spring, and which caused such a falling off of the supply of eggs.

STEVENS GAME

steadily and Ford carried it over for the third touchdown. Bloss kicked off to Storrs. Carlson kicked it great and Miss Waterbury who ran it back 40 yards. The half ended with the ball in midfield. Score: Stevens 21, Connecticut 0.

The Bantam started off good in the second half and for a time marched steadily up the field. Near the center of the field Stevens stiffened and Hopkins came through. Egger punched the ball over Hopkins' head and it rolled clear to our 2 yard line. Hopkins punched to Degue who ran back 15 yards. Degue smashed through center for 12 yards and on the next play he streaked around right end for a touchdown. Carlson kicked the ball thru the Koons goal posts. Stevens led by a score of 1-0.

During the rest of the game, there were no half as much to be seen and there was one excitement following another. The grandstand (two co-eds) stood up and looked closely, in great expectancy, to see who would get the next goal. Kennedy, a stix player for Storrs was seen running and kicking the ball up and down the field. Much of the time saw him knocked down or tackled by some strong player of either side in their excitement. Graf tarred for Storrs, seeing many of them at a time when a number of his opponents would go after him when he had the ball. Pinkham, a star for Storrs, being of such stature, came up to kick many many points without being detected. Many other stars were present, two kinds being found, heavenly and earthly. After much hard scrimmaging, pushing, clawing, sweating and kicking the Storrs men made a supreme effort and finally pushed the ball over the Koons line for another goal. Coach Schnack, representing the Koons team, saw many of them at a time when a number of his opponents would go after him when he had the ball. Pinkham, a star for Storrs, being of such stature, came up to kick many many points without being detected. Many other stars were present, two kinds being found, heavenly and earthly.

The Connecticut Bee is being tried out in the state of Connecticut, not only in Connecticut, but in Massachusetts also.

FRESHMAN CLASS MEETING

The first meeting of the Class of 1923 was held in the Armory on Tuesday evening, October 7, 1919. The majority of the class were present, and the meeting proceeded with enthusiasm. Charles Neumann, of the Class of '21, acted as temporary chairman, and called the meeting to order. After a few brief remarks, he called for nominations for the office of chairman. E. G. Sickler, D. B. Bassett, and A. H. Crofts were nominated. Sickler was elected by a large majority and proceeded to take charge of the meeting. Miss Janette Smith, Miss Flanagan and Miss Waterbury were nominated for the office of secretary. Miss Smith was elected. D. B. Bassett was elected for the office of treasurer by a large majority. The other candidates for the office were E. S. Patterson and D. Sneidman. G. E. Elye was the election for football manager, defeating H. Steck and K. D. Stoughton.

The offices of the class having been filled, the meeting proceeded with other business. The first matter to come up for discussion was the payment of the bill for the field. The meeting was adjourned until the next meeting.

NOTICE!

A meeting of the American Legion, Mansfield Post No. 46, in the Armory October 28. Philo Calhoun, chairman of the Connecticut Valley, and other speakers, will speak, after which refreshments will be served. A circular letter has been sent to all ex-service men in Mansfield and surrounding towns, inviting them to attend this meeting. It is expected that this meeting will be the means of bringing at least seventy-five new members into the Mansfield Post of the American Legion.
stands the mental attitude of the patient operating to destroy everything that the physician builds up. A third person, a helpful one with a thorough scientific understanding of psychology, may discover the patient's difficulty and present it to the physician in a way as to establish immediately a different mental attitude on both of their parts. For as a matter of fact the work of subtle dealings with states of mind.

For example, in the peripheral nerve department, was a patient who had suffered serious nerve injuries. There had been other complications, also, and he had been operated upon for various things, until operations became a thing to be avoided at all costs.

An operation was recommended by the ward surgeon to correct this condition. The two men, a waist one of readjustment of the nerves, and was necessary if the man was to regain control of his hand. But the man absolutely refused.

He declared that he had rather have a crippled hand all the rest of his life than have another operation, and that the only thing in the world he wanted was to be turned loose and let go home. He had seen as much of the hospitals as he ever wanted to see and he was not going "to be carried away upon.

No surgeon would undertake an operation on a patient who was in such a state of mind. The man could easily be made whole and well, but not while he was contesting the help every inch of the way. And the physicians were at a loss to know what to do about the matter. So Miss Wallace talked to the man.

TALKED AWAY DOUBTS

She found out about his service in France, about his wounds and the months he had been in hospitals and more hospitals. She also found out that he did not want to have an operation: "Don't ever have any more operations.

It will be no use."

Another thing she found out was that the man, in a sort of unreasonable dislike to the surgeon who was to perform the operation. Then when the surgeon had confided all of these things he felt better, and when he talked them over quietly with Miss Wallace he found that a good many of them no longer existed.

Miss Wallace, understanding the situation from the soldier's viewpoint, was then prepared to drop certain suggestions on the surgeon, and the ward surgeon in his turn, was able to convey such information to the soldier as to remove his unreasonable objection to the operation and the surgeon who was to perform it.

A few days later Miss Wallace saw that she had done her work, for the soldier in his ward. Whereas he had been morose and discontented, he was now all enthusiasm.

"Oh, Miss Wallace," he called, "I am going to have that operation right away, and then I'm going home." The man had the operation, underwent it successfully and is now well on his way to recovery.

"400 BY 1920"

What is all this talk about building temporary wooden barracks to house the overflow of students here next year? And why is it that our re- enlar supplies looks worried when she talks of having two shifts every meal in the dining hall? The new dining hall at that!

Of course, everything that has a roof is pretty well filled even now with students jostling each other's elbows whenever they turn around, and you have to scrape for a seat among the jolly crowd at the old "hash house." But when you see those "higher ups" planning for the welfare of students who have yet to be introduced to this college you know that we have something on the same idea in the line of keeping out the weeds.

Remember that oft-repeated ambiguous phrase "400 by 1920"? That was a high aiming mark for a small young agricultural college set so far away up on the hills, and it made the founders of the thought swell with pride and expectation whenever they heard the words.

We were sadly set back for two or three years by the unforgivable activities of a certain spirit of the devil in Europe, who is at present chipping wood in Holland, but now American lads and lassies, men and women, are filling the halls and dormitories and colleges all over the land more than ever before.

Another freshman class the size of the present one will give us a total to be written in three figures headed by a "4." If only the legislature at Hartford had a little more trouble with a few kids to give them a little interest in the place, we might not have to struggle and scheme so much in order to take care of all the bright young American citizens who want to avail themselves of the golden opportunity to secure an education.

Even if we did have enough capacity for housing and feeding over 400 students, there is not enough room to hold classes of the size which will be the popular thing then. We might do the "back to nature" stunt and sit under a spreading tree or under a wind-pine while the prof lectured on Science in its Relation to Social Content, or some frivolous subject like that.

It may be that the legislature expected, since we are a bunch of rubes and hayseeds, that we would be content to sleep in hay lofts or horse stables. At any rate, although they knew that the state college would be overcrowded, they gave little thought to the matter. They have got economy down to a fine point. Here's hoping none of us have to live in wooden barracks!

THE AMERICAN LEGION

Very few of us realize what an important factor in American idealism the American Legion is becoming. We are proud to see a post established at Storrs by students and others who are especially interested in maintaining those ideals for which they fought during the war.

The Connecticut Agricultural College has a large representation of such men, and surely they will all recognize the greatness of the organization. College men will be most active members and foremost in promoting the principles of Americanism in the promotion and perpetuation of which the Legion was formed.

Many men, rather, too many men who are eligible for membership persist in holding off because they cannot see what benefit individually they are going to get out of joining. It is a pity that these men, who were fighting, were fighting under the flag for democracy and America, are not now doing all they can for those interests.

Many alumni receive copies.

Mr. Editor:

In the issue of the "Campus" for October 17 it was an article concerning a project recently launched with the idea of building a new church at the community here. This was not a new idea, as before the war mention was made of it, but on account of the stress of the times, it was thought advisable not to proceed to any great extent with it.

Now, however, events are running more quietly for us, and it is even more deserving of attention in the dining hall, nothing is seen or heard concerning services now being held Sundays. Would it not be a good idea, Mr. Editor, to have a definite space set aside in the Campus each week for the church and church services?

We have our Athletic notes, Freshman notes, etc., but no notice is given to the Church and religious notes.

R. E. D.

In order to make this a reality, money is needed. In order to get money for any project, interest in the project is needed. Then, in order to get interest, advertising or publicity is needed.

How are we to get these things?

Large city churches are realizing the advantage of advertising and smaller churches are imitating this, both finding for themselves the best method to use for the best results.

With the exception of small typewritten notices, which are posted on the bulletin boards among numerous notices of property lost or found, and a small notice posted on the door of the dining hall, nothing is seen or heard concerning services now being held Sundays. Would it not be a good idea, Mr. Editor, to have a definite space set aside in the Campus each week for the church and church services?

We have our Athletic notes, Freshman notes, Plant Notes, etc.; but no notice is given to the Church and religious notes.

It would suggest that this space should contain:

I. The name of the speaker and his subject for the morning service, when possible.

II. The name of the leader or speaker and subject for Vesper services.

III. The name of the leader and topic for the evening services; also the time of meeting of each service.

Then I would suggest that there be a short summary of the meetings for the previous week.

Any social or business meetings connected with the church should also be included in this space.

Nearly every student either has his own copy of the "Campus" or borrows someone's copy to read it thru; also many alumni receive copies.

If church notices were included in the weekly copies of the "Campus," it would be a poorer excuse for not being at church, or not knowing about church meetings.

FACULTY NOTICE — Any more students who marry while at this college will be expelled. Care of any who hold options and co-eds on the Valentine House veranda.

Mr. Warner, has a hen any teeth? No, get out! Keep the tooth-brush, Prescott.

No, Merle, a man isn’t necessarily homely because he is fond of his home.

Freshman: Where’s Ricketts? Upperclassman: Gone to Willy to get his shoes shined.

Freshman: All—right—I’ll see him when he gets back.

It is rumored that Buce Gleason is still in bed after being unmercifully beaten by V. Hercules Pinkham.

Text for football practice today: “Cast a deck in the Dining Hall lest ye be bawled out by the men of Hal.”

No girls, Mahoney hasn’t decided yet whether he’ll take those Freshman or Sophomore girls to the Football Hop.

Prof. Slate: This class must think it’s in church. Come up here and fill the front seats.

Why is everyone singing, “Take your girle to the grandstand” if you can’t make love at the front seats.

No, you can’t.

Dancing Master Beano Graf will not wear his medals while he teaches dancing. The medals are rather heavy and so Maguire has consented to hold them while Beano performs.

Cadet Major Alexander gave Major Ferris quite a bawling out when the latter reported for duty last week. You tell him, Al, we privates can’t!

Freshman girls had better their hair at the front. We want to know what way you’re going.

The best service a knocker can do for his community is to knock off knocking.

No, Dutch, tractor can’t run 48 hours a day.

We wonder if the girls like to kiss each other in public just to aggravate the men?

Anyone wishing a costume for the coming masquerade apply to Diddley Graf, “The Stamford Tailor’s Model.”

Arthur Metcalf Badly Injured on Hunting Trip

Arthur Metcalf, ’15, was accidentally shot while on a camping trip in Massachusetts. “Met” had just been discharged from a hospital for chronic appendicitis. While recuperating from the accident happened.

A rifle fell to the floor of the cabin and the concussion was great enough to discharge the rifle, though it was not cocked. The bullet entered Metcalf’s stomach, giving him a serious injury. Being far from medical aid, he lost much blood. After lying in the hospital about five weeks, he has recovered.

“Butch” Callahan is a salesman for a Bond Company of New York. His business makes its necessary to be in this district often.

Francis Wood, ’18, recently discharged from the U. S. Field Artillery has accepted a position at the Vineyard Egg Laying Contest in New Jersey. He left for his position Monday, October 19th.

Henry McFetridge, ’18, is running his farm in Simsbury. Henie is running it on a scientific basis, and says it takes science to run a farm nowadays.

“Tommie” Elocok received a contract to go on the stage and dance.

“Pat” thinks, however, that his education will do him in better stead so refused it.

The Interfraternity Smoker was held Friday, October 17. Some of the men present were Wm. Carrier, ’13, Hal Brundage, ’18, Daniel Horton, ’16, Imbert Fellows, ’16, Walter Ackerman, ’15, George Stumpf, ’18 and Bertram Callahan, ’18. Beside the alumni there were thirteen active members and about twenty freshmen.

The speakers for the evening were Harold Brundage, who spoke about the history of the Fraternity; Walter Ackerman, speaking of “The Purpose of the Fraternity;” and Bertram Callahan spoke on “What the Frat. meant to him in outside life.”

PARTY GIVEN AT PRACTICE HOUSE FOR MISS SMITH

A dinner party was given by the Practice House group last Friday evening in honor of Salome C. Smith’s birthday. Miss Smith was not aware that anyone knew that it was her birthday until the waiters brought in the birthday cake decorated with lighted candles.

“O, how did anyone know that it was my birthday,” was the exclamation worth forth.

The “Practice House Family” then presented Miss Smith with a little “C” pearl pin. The guests who were present were: E. A. Osborn, C. W. New- man, F. H. Carriere, and E. H. Langdon.

During the dinner another “sur­ prise” was given Miss Smith in the form of her younger sister, Mildred C. Smith, who came unexpectedly to visit her.

R. O. T. C. DIRECTED BY WAR PLANS DIVISION

Course of Instruction Will Be Varied and Includes New Things

The R. O. T. C. has been practically revolutionized this year by the great changes ordered by the war department. Hitherto the R. O. T. C. was under the jurisdiction of the committee on Education and Special Training, whereas from now on it will be under the direct orders of the War Division of the General Staff, functioning through the office of the Adjutant General of the Army.

Although it was rumored that a cavalry unit would be established here the orders at present call for only an infantry unit. The two under classes will have two hours of drill, target practice, care of rifles, equipment and one hour lecture on personal hygiene, military organization and map-reading. Those Juniors and Seniors who have elected the advanced course will take the prescribed work as outlined by Special Regulations number 14, which is a complete R. O. T. C. course.

Major Ferris, the new commandant, plans an innovation in the course by having those men who take the advanced course study allied academic subjects in connection with their work. Physics, surveying and map-making, and advanced history will be some of the subjects taught should this plan be put in force. In order to get away from the monotonous ‘squads right and squads left’ a number of variations are planned including military games, hikes, over-night camps and possibly a military ball.

INDEPENDENT TEAM WINS IN WILLIMANTIC

The Connecticut Independents composed of students of the Connecticut Agricultural College defeated the Emerals of Willimantic 35 to 28 in a game of basketball Wednesday evening, October 15, in the State Armory at Willimantic.

For an early season game it was far from played. The Independents showed flashes of real basketball repeatedly carrying the ball the length of the floor for baskets. The team work on both sides was good.

The scoring of the Independents was very evenly divided, Putnam and Barlow each getting four. The Lewis brothers starred for the Emerals.

The following men played for the Connecticut Independents: Barlow, Putnam, Lockwood, Gronwaldt, Met­ elli and Feeley.

TRACK TEAMS COMPETE

Despite a lack of training and very little notice of a track meet coming on, five men of the college competed against great odds at the Stafford Fair track meet Wednesday, October 18, and made a very creditable show­ing. Buck Goodrick, an outstanding, won third place in the half-mile, against such men as Evans, the U. S. junior half-mile star. Levy, a new man at college, was slated as fourth in the running broad jump. We were outclassed in all the other events. At present very little is being done on track work, but with the ma­terial we have at present, the coach says that there is no reason why we can't develop a good track team and compete with credit against the other colleges.

MR. BAKER'S ALLEREY

HAND BOOK

Gives Summarization of Sub­jects Covered in His A. E. F. School

It may not be generally known that Mr. H. J. Baker, Director of the Ex­tion work here at Storrs, was the principal of one of the American E. F. U. Extension Farms Schools in France. His particular school was located in Allerey, France, and gave farm courses to approximately twenty-four hundred members. The school started about April 1st, 1919, and was to con­tinue for three months, but the Gov­ernment curtailed its educational pro­gram. The school was closed about the middle of June.

At the beginning, the professors and men were forced to the ex­pedient of combining the various out­lines, which they had prepared for their own use, into a sort of hand­book for the soldiers to use. This little book was named the Allerey, from the name of the town. It is paper covered, about half an inch thick.

The efficient service of the little hand-book has brought it into promin­ence and it is being looked over by many interested in the lines which it takes up. Agricultural Engineering, Agronomy, Animal Husbandry, Horticulture, and Rural Economics and Sociology, and the various branches of these subjects, are all summarized in the booklet. The soldiers must have been able to get a good deal out of their courses, with the assistance of the Allerey, even though they had such a short time in the University.

PROF. GARRIGUS BUYS WELL BRED RAMS

Another Carload of Extension Ewes Bought on Trip Thru New York

With C. W. Roberts of Haddam, Conn., A. G. Skinner autoed to Pitts­field, Mass., Thursday, October 20, where they were joined by Prof. H. L. Garrigus, the three continuing to the sheep farms of The Interstate Live Stock Co., of Selkirk, N. Y.; the Iro­quois, Glimmer Glen, and Henry Wardwell Farms of Cooperstown, N. Y., returning to Storrs on Saturday.

Mr. Roberts is contemplating the foundation of a commercial pure-bred sheep farm and took the trip to study these farms which are some of the best in this country. While at the farm in Selkirk, a carload of grade ewes was bought for the Connecticut Extension Department, and Mr Roberts purchased a few pure­bred Shropshires. The Interstate Livestock Co., which these sheep were bought, has about 3,000 sheep in stock. At Iroquois Farm one of the very best flocks of pure-bred Shropshires in the United States was seen. Glim­mer Glen Farm has flocks of Shrop­shires, Southdowns, Cheviots, and Hampshires. At Wardwell's Farm, a nationally credited flock of Shrop­shires was reviewed, and before leav­ing, Prof. Garrigus purchased two rams for the Connecticut Extension Flock. One of these rams is of "Duke of Westminster" breeding.

PROF. PLAN PLEASURE

Three years ago the faculty were contem­plating the building of a camp. The interest in this was revived when Jack Hughes, W. L. Slate, G. S. Tor­rey and Max Abel hiked to Fenton Valley on Sunday afternoon October 19 in search of a prospective site. Most of the faculty members are ex­pected to leave a share in constructing the camp. It will serve as a terminus for hunting, fishing and hiking par­ties; and provide sufficient accommo­dations for those wishing to spend the week end.

No definite plans have been drawn up, but action will be taken in the near future as soon as an organization is formed, which will be open to all faculty members.
New Men Benefit by Explanations of Four Big Organizations Here

Near the beginning of each college year, it has been customary for a group of students to speak at College Assembly on the principal college activities. The speakers at the assembly on Oct. 15 were Earle R. Cramp, '20, Paul N. Manwaring, '20, Warren E. Brockett, '21, and Everett D. Dow, '21.

Mr. Cramp spoke of the work of the Glee Club. He briefly outlined its history and told of the enjoyment the members had had at rehearsals and on trips when concerts were given. A director has been secured for the club this year and plans for the season are being outlined. Four trips and two concerts on the Hill are some of the things the club is looking forward to. It is desired that a large number of the men attend the tryouts to be given soon.

The advantages of being a member of the Dramatic Club were forcibly brought out by Mr. Manwaring. He emphasized the fact that great benefit is derived by a student who takes part in dramatics. The quite common malady of "stage fright" may be overcome by those who take part in the Dramatic Club activities. The club has an extensive program mapped out so new members are needed. Everyone in the club will have a chance to show his or her ability in some way. New members will be taken in sometime in December and all interested should prepare for the tryouts.

Mr. Brockett, who is Editor-in-chief of the Campus, spoke of the need of more students becoming members of the staff of the college paper. The importance of the paper in college activities cannot be over-emphasized, and students should realize that time devoted to Campus work is well spent. There is plenty of room for new men and women on both the news and business staff.

Mr. Dow, who was recently elected Editor-in-Chief of the Nutmeg, told of what the college year book is to consist. This is a comparatively new thing on the hill, as only three issues have been made previous to this year, none being published during the war. The publishing of the Nutmeg requires a great deal of hard work by the staff. However, the student body has its part to play, as the success of the book depends largely on the support and cooperation of all. There will be a humorous section in the book and all the funny incidents of the year will be reviewed.

The freshmen had not understood fully the importance and opportunities of the greater college organizations, but since the explanations which were given at the Assembly, many of them have begun to participate in one or another of these activities.
