TRUSTEES OF COLLEGE PRESENT CRITICISM

ISSUE FULL STATEMENT. SHOW THAT C. A. C. HAS MADE EXCELLENT SHOWING IN FACE OF DIFFICULTIES.

The functions, enrollment, use of appropriated money and the growth of the Connecticut Agricultural College are some of the things that the Trustees of the College considered when they submitted their report to Governor Lake last week. In a letter accompanying the report the Trustees have stated that they believe that the plan directed against the College has been destructive and that it is not based upon facts.

The statement given out by the College is as follows:

The trustees in response to the public demand inaugurated short winter courses beginning in 1898, which have been given continuously with the exception of two years, up to 1919. After the close of the war the enrollment at Storrs increased 63 per cent. It was found necessary, therefore, to discontinue some of the short courses for the past three years on account of the lack of dormitory and classroom accommodations. The Extension schools, the instruction offered in connection with boys' and girls' clubs, the adult dairy and poultry clubs, and the extension service in its various activities, in a measure, takes the place of the ten-day courses previously offered at the college.

In 1919 the trustees established a course of agricultural open to young men 16 years of age who have had a common school education. A student desiring special instruction may enter and take any one of the four ten-week periods of instruction offered. This arrangement provides for students who would ordinarily enroll in the four-year courses.

GROWTH OF COLLEGE

The increase during the past two years of 63 per cent. in the enrollment of the college has created the accommodations to such an extent that it has been found necessary in the dormitories to crowd four men into suites designed for two, which is very difficult for students to enjoy the privacy and quiet needed for thorough scholarly accomplishments. The four dormitories in the house of the faculty, as well as houses in the neighborhood are occupied by students and employees of the institution and it is difficult at times for students needing representation for personal visits to the college. It may be urged, therefore, that another dormitory for men is needed and that when erected it should be reserved for two-year and short winter course students.

ENROLLMENT IN COLLEGE

The student enrollment of men and women in the college is as follows:

Men—Four-year courses in agriculture, 215; two year courses in agriculture, 31; four year courses in mechanical arts, 20.

Women—Four year courses in home economics, 62.

The enrollment in 1920 was 354, in 1921 an increase of 63 per cent over the five years preceding.

Of the 292 male students enrolled in 1920-21, 266 were enrolled in agricultural courses or 91.1 per cent. A recent report of the United States bureau of education shows that no other land grant college has so large a percentage of students in agricultural courses. Eighty-two per cent. of the young men now enrolled at the college had farm experience before entering.

Of the 3,000 former students and graduates, 60 per cent. are engaged in agriculture of which 50 per cent. are engaged in agriculture and 10 per cent. in teaching, investigation, etc.

The trustees answer the question the college developing into a university by stating, "It has not and never has been the desire of the faculty of the policy of the trustees to develop a university. The work of the institution is devoted entirely to instruction and development of agricultural, mechanic arts and home economics."

NO COMPETITION

The Connecticut Agricultural College says the statement, does not compete with Yale, Wesleyan or Trinity. Fifty per cent. of the courses offered are vocational agriculture, 25 per cent. agricultural sciences, 25 per cent. liberal studies. It is generally recognized that in professional and technical schools a certain amount of time should be devoted to such subjects as history, English and economics in order to provide a well rounded training and preparation for good citizenship.

FUNCTIONS OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

In stating the functions of an agricultural college the trustees say: "There are three chief functions of an agricultural college—(1) Investigations—(2) Education—(3) Extension."

STUDENTS STUDY MARKET IN OPERATION

NEW YORK PIERS VISITED.

Marketing Class Ends Two Day Trip With All Night Session

A weary but enthusiastic group of men returned from New York Thursday night after the three day trip conducted by Prof. I. G. Davis with his classes in Marketing. Tuesday and most of Wednesday were spent in studying market conditions in Connecticut. The first stop was made at Ellington where a cooperative tobacco warehouse was inspected. In Hartford more information was secured from Mr. Pelisson of the Connecticut Valley Tobacco Growers, Incorporated and County Agent Southwick. Cigars made on the premises were presented to all of the class.

Swift & Co. was then visited and the branch manager Mr. Lameroux proved a very genial and interesting host. At a special dinner room showing many of the products of this company had been provided and a very instructive display was made. Later in the afternoon Mr. Bryant of Bryant & Chapman and Mr. Hough of the Connecticut Milk Producers' Association discussed the problems of marketing milk.

Tuesday night was spent in New Haven and at an early hour Wednesday morning the class was ready to take the train to the New Haven Market. The coming of the class to the New Haven market place had been heralded in the morning newspapers and the various dealers visited seemed prepared and willing to answer questions and volunteer information about their business. Garrett M. Stuck, market reporter guided the party during this time. The Sperry & Barnes meat packing plant was inspected and the methods of manufacturing pork products were watched with considerable interest.

Immediately after dinner the class drove to Bridgeport. Here again it was found that the newspapers had heralded that the students from C. A. C. were coming. Several wholesale fruit and produce houses were visited here. The most interesting was that of Musante & Pastine. Mr. Musante conducted the class through the storage rooms in his warehouse and showed specimens of various packages used in marketing farm products.

The Bridgeport Public Market, which is a very efficient retailing organization, was next inspected. By this time the thoughts of all were directed towards

The Springfield Y. M. C. A. College was the attraction for the Aggies in their opening game on Gardner Hill Wednesday evening. This visiting outfit put up a fine, fast game of baseball which was just a bit too fast for our boys. The first four innings gave the appearance that all the rooters were in to see a first class game, but it also showed that the Aggies are still without the necessary pep and confidence because they seemed to lose all team work when two errors were made by their team mates.

The first inning started off with Ralph Brundage getting a base and stealing second. Alexander with the best and longest hit of the game sent him home scoring the first run of the game, which "Lou" was able to get safely. It was only fast fielding that kept the hit from being a triple.

In the second inning Springfield ranked up the score when Steinhiller drove out a tagger, scoring Maynard.

In the fourth Williams, the visiting moundsmen, remembered Alexander and his mighty clout in the first so he gave him a free pass. Menacci single which gave "Alex" an easy route to third. Mullane drove out a nice single scoring Alexander and Menacci but was caught in his effort to stretch the hit into a double.

The first of the fifth saw the unloading of the Aggies. Brunner dropped a foul after making a fine effort and Lord misjudged Mac Carracker drive to left.

These errors gave Springfield the chance they were waiting for and they resorted to bunting. They showed great proficiency in timely and well placed bunts and sacrifice hits, being able to chalk up a three run lead.

Both teams found themselves in the sixth and played better ball.

STUDENT COMMITTEE FRAME DANCE REGULATIONS

In accordance with the action taken at the last meeting of the Student Organization, a committee of three men has been appointed by President Alexander to make recommendations to the student body on the matter of dancing. It will be the duty of this committee to outline, as nearly as possible, the forms of dancing which have been spoken of by facely members and by outsiders as "objectionable"; and to recommend some method whereby this matter will be efficiently taken care of.

The committee appointed by Pres. Alexander is: J. Peter Johnson, chairman, Philip F. Dean, and Harold W. Steck.

GAS ENGINE STUDENTS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

No Lives but a Few Year's Growth Lost

Students in Ag. Engineering 5-b have decided to wear gas masks and suits of chain-mail in the future in order to be safe from catastrophe, which may occur while at their dangerous trade. This resolution was put into effect following an explosion in the basement (or so-called engine room) of the Machinery Building on last Thursday afternoon. A group of dozen gas-engine "experts" under the supervision of Mr. F. W. Knipe were running brake-band tests on three highly-tempermental engines, when an accumulation of gases in the chimney exploded with terrific violence.

A small door in the chimney was blown into a thousand pieces, wrecking a blacksmith's forge which happened to stand in front of the door, and the room was filled with flying ashes and smoke. "Red" Cohen was mortally wounded in the thumb with a flying cinder, which he asserted was a whole brick, and Pinkham was so surprised that he stopped talking for two minutes. A grand rush was made for the outer air, and the smoke of battle had cleared away, an investigation revealed the true nature of the accident.

The experts again took up their brake tests, but not until they had telegraphed to Hartford for accident insurance policies, covering fire, water and gas engines explosions.

New York and at four o'clock the trip to the big city started. After having supper and attending a show the class assembled at the Pennsylvania Hotel and prepared to see how New York's food supply is handled. At midnight the unloading of milk trains at the Hudson Terminal was observed. The Sheffield Farms Company milk plant was then looked over. At this place milk is pasteurized and bottled as nearly automatically as possible. Prof. Asher Hosen of Columbia University and Mr. Albert a graduate student guided the class through this and the following steps in the ins and outs of the markets and were acquainted with the best ways of securing good information.

About four o'clock the train was in the vicinity of the Washington Market, where fruit and produce are bought and sold in great quantity. Several piers where carload lots come in were next visited. At 5 p.m. the dealers were allowed access to the goods and at 5:30 the buyers appeared and a general scramble ensued. At six o'clock all of this had been sold before the eyes of the wandering students and was being removed from the piers. Later a fruit auction was observed. After seeing different types of markets including the Fulton Fish Market, a visit was made at the Mercantile Exchange where the butter and egg market board was operated. Then came a visit to the New York Stock Exchange. A representative of the exchange was detailed to explain the workings of the institution to many of the students. From the gallery a good idea of how stocks are bought and sold was obtained.

Those taking the trip were Prof. I. G. Davis, Maloney, Taylor, Gates, Osborn, Bleivins, Fieneman, Wallace, Alexander, Hartwell, Kostofesky, Clark and Beers.

YOUNG MAN'S FANCY?

"In the spring a young man's fancy, etc., does the witty written by someone or other. However, we have never noticed that the fancy mentioned above was quoted line turns to love any more noticeably in the spring than any other season. In fact, it would seem that in all seasons a young man's fancy turned toward thoughts of love. The fancies of the girls seem to tend in the same general direction at the same times, we beg to relate.

But the fancy of the young men and young women in the cool season of the year, called winter by the way, was the gar in this section of the globe, is causing some little perspiration to stand out on the brows of those whose faces are near the temperature in other places, and particularly in certain states. It is caused by the cold weather but not enough so as to keep the youngsters warm, betook themselves to certain protected places on the campus that fancy might not be interrupted. Sad to say they were discovered, probably by some other fanciful person who was extremely shocked to learn others were fanciful, too, and who knew a good story when he saw a presentation of itself and turned it over to the "gosspitated press" which does such splendid work here. The rest of the story is plain.

It is a rare thing that has always been a rarity when there are both boys and girls together, and probably will continue.

Without an electrically barri­caded audience, it is a fact that there will always be considerable associa­tion between the men students and the co-eds, and if there was, we surmise that someone would get through the barrier and give the tongues a chance to wag. Of course we are sorry to learn that some of the girls have been bold enough to stay out after seven o'clock. We had always fancied they were too meek for that.

But to talk in a serious vein, it must be remembered that being a co-ed isn't exactly the most thrilling type of life. The college women especially trust to the freedom of the men stu­dents, and the fellows that have the fancies shouldn't lose sight of the fact that the weight of indecency, we'll use this term to designate the strange doings of the fanciful, falls much harder on the co-eds than on themselves.

Another little side-light might not go amiss at this time. If spring is the season when love overtakes us all, as most poets seem to agree, we will expect that there will be a great suffi­ciency of couples on the campus who turn fanciful. But we do respectfully request that these couples refrain from representations of the average sculptor's interpretations of the sea­sons on the lawns of the campus. Moreover, we might ask them to let the fanciful lead them farther from the walks of men, than is sometimes the case,—because we don't like to stumble over them.

Plainly, be sure and get your girl to practice her dormitory at seven o'clock in the evening and don't take her anywhere that might draw the censure of the authorities. Breaking rules won't help the cause and will turn it sooner or later as it has done in the past. Just be optimistic for senior privileges and such progressive measures will in time be incorporated in the self-government of the co-eds. At least we hope they will.

JUNIOR WEEK RECESS

It seems rather bad that it was not until the final days of the junior year that the committee to grant the juniors a half day holiday during this coming junior week, that they might more successfully concentrate in their social activi­ties of that festival. It seems that if the classes that would have to be suspended to grant this holiday would be such a dire loss to the students in the condition they will be in the morn­ing after the Prom. that Connecticut Day will be an alarming robbery and that it should not be tolerated. Of course nobody feels that way about it—because they know that Connecticut Day, even though not a fun fest to those who aren't keen for lifting rocks, etc., is a beneficial holiday to the college. Isn't the case somewhat parallel where the recess is refused? Junior week is the biggest social week in the college year, when the students would like to make a good impression on their families, the alumni, and visitors. It is as valuable to them as Day and the days that followed. And the memory of the long after Connecticut Day is forgotten,—especially by the juniors. If the committee cannot re­lease the funds to make it possible to stay up the night after the dance the week will always be kindly remem­bered.

"CAMPUSS" ELECTIONS

There are very few persons who are in a position to receive serious con­sidation from the "Campus" board in the elections for membership on the board. The elections will be held sometime next week, and it is doubtful if the vacancies caused by graduation will be filled. People desiring membership should hurry to do the work for the remainder of the year indicative of enough interest and worth to make them eligible in June when more elections will be held. If you want a "drag" with the "Campus" you'll have to work for it.

The Women's Student Government is a comparatively new organization. It is now in its third year. When we enter C. A. C., we automatically become a part of this organization, and in so doing we submit to all the rules which have been laid down by that government. After that, if it is decided we are governing ourselves and this sort of government simply means that we must live up to the standard of rules passed by the or­ganization and enforced with the aid of the student council.

We have the privilege of self-gov­ernment,—it may be not that the students should decide that a rule was bad,—should it not be changed? This system calls for team work of the best kind. Few girls would deliberately write a dishonest act; on the other hand, few girls would have the grit to stand up for honor alone against a crowd.

If everybody pulls together, it makes it easier for each one, and the co-ed who is not cooperating with her sister co-eds and who does not try to uphold the highest standards is shown.

Next year we will be in a new dorkity. There will be new conditions arising and additional strength will be needed and we hope with them will be in full. With the coming of commencement we must consider elections for next year. We say we have student council, that every girl has a voice in elections, but what we really have is a government by the few, by the "elite" who take upon themselves the tremendous responsibility of thinking. The rest follow blindly.

Too often we find the same girls can­didate for different offices from the freshman year on. A girl, of course, may be nominated again and again because she has proved herself competent, but is there not a possibility that such is only an example of the government of the few.

Wake up! Think about the part you can play. Think about the re­quirements or standards of the offices. Watch the girls in your class. Watch each of such a prospective office-holder. Weigh her good qualities and her faults. Do not let your considerations stop with the recognized leaders, but let them rest with the unobstrusive type who may be found to possess superior qualities."

"From the idea suggested by accident to the idea of spinning"—Miss Fannie A. Kimball, teacher of the blind for the state of Rhode Island learned of this through Henry Dorrance, president of the Association, and came to the college recently to investigate the possibilities of the movements. Herself totally blind, Miss Kimble quickly picked up the idea of spinning from the fleece, and thinks that blind workers can easily be taught to spin by hand.

Blind people spend much of their time knitting and doing needle work, as it is one of the occupations which they enjoy. If they can be taught to use the spinning wheel, it would be a trade that might be procured much cheaper than it can be bought. Mr. Garrigus intends to take up the project with other workers among the blind and see if this could be done successfully. He contemplates taking it up with the institution at Hartford and eventually with all state institutions for the blind. Thus cheaper yarn may become a widespread feature of the work among the blind.

"HUMAN INTEREST" BULLETIN SCORES DECIDED HIT

REV. DAWSON AROUSES "PED"

Poultry Enthusiasm to be Made From Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen

Mr. Walter Stemmons, the college publicity agent, felt that a new type of agricultural bulletin should be issued, namely a bulletin that not only contains useful information, but which will be read "from cover to cover" by the person receiving it, if he ever beins the perusal. In short, a bulletin of this type must be a human interest bulletin.

To demonstrate the possibility and values of this type of bulletin, Mr. Stemmons and Mr. Baker, head of the Extension Service, engaged the Rev. Marshall Dawson, Chaplain of the College, and a poultry enthusiast, to write a pamphlet for the Extension Department, entitled "Success with a Backyard Flock."

This bulletin is now being distributed. The advance copies have been received with enthusiastic response. The New Haven office, to which 25 copies were sent, immediately wrote for 50 copies more. The customary comment of those receiving the bulletin is, "I have read it through." Some have already become converted to the back-yard poultry enthusiasm, and have announced their intention of becoming backyarde. Notable among these is Mr. G. Ellsworth Meech, vice-president and manager of Meech & Stoddard's dealers and poultry dealers.

It is Mr. Dawson's idea that the backyard poultryman is the hope of the future, for the development of Connecticut as a poultry state depends upon the success of the back-yard poultryman. His organization and the success of his ideas is directly the undertaking of the facilities we offer.

Mr. Dawson carries out this idea in his bulletin by taking up points often totally neglected by the writers of the usual type of "technical bulletin." His title of "Success with a Backyard Flock" first attracts the attention and interest of the reader, and this interest is kept up throughout the article by discussing very interesting topics such as "The First Egg," "Learning the Job," "Putting the Piano Box to Work," "Warning Water Electrically," and also by commenting on the mistakes as often made by the novice.

Throughout the whole bulletin we find a number of epigrams, of which the following are typical examples: "Anyone who can learn to operate a Ford car can learn to get eggs out of a pullet." "The final success with a laying flock is never to let the hen lose her mind." "Remember that a hen has no teeth." "The hen is not a unfathomable mystery, but an orderly machine."

This new bulletin, which is a de.

PATRIOTISM BIG ASSET
SAYS FATHER KEEFE

Asserts Connecticut More Than Able to Hold Her Own

Father William A. Keefe of St. Mary's Church, Norwich, Conn., gave a very interesting address before the State Assembly on April 20th. He had no definite topic, but spoke in a general way on the spirit of American patriotism, and on Connecticut's contribution to the nation. He declared that after the War some men thought that they could lay aside their patriotism and think only of business, but that we should still give the Connecticut pioneers, and keep alive the spirit of patriotism in America.

Connecticut has always done her part, he stated, and during the Revolution she furnished three times the required quota of soldiers for the army.

To show the importance of Connecticut's industries, Father Keefe humorously described a business man who was completely outfitted with Connecticut clothes made in Connecticut factories. His home and office furnishings were made in Connecticut and all day long his needs were supplied by Connecticut made products. Piano, victrola, and automobile for recreation were made in Connecticut, his life was insured in a Connecticut company and even in death a stone of Connecticut granite was raised over his grave.

With her industrial and agricultural possibilities, Connecticut, he maintained, can still do much to help make our nation greater and more prosperous.

Every day sees some new change in the appearance of the new Girls' Home, and the second floor is very near completion. The contract which is held by the Wales Lines Co., of Meriden, calls for a complete building by September 1st, but with the present rate of progress, and barring shortage of supplies or labor troubles it looks as if the girls' new home will be ready around July 1st.

The cellar of the Shakespearean Club's new home is now practically completed and Mr. Benson, the contractor, will begin work on the superstructure the first part of the week.
CLASS REUNIONS TO BE REAL LIVE "PEP FESTS"

To Specialize on "Sixes" and "Ones," Suggestions Welcomed by Committee.

The alumni were so pleased with the showing made by the few class reunions held last Commencement that they voted that an endeavor should be made to feature these functions in the near future.

The Alumni Secretary is encouraging all ones and sixes to stage a reunion this year and is pleased to announce that the following classes are taking steps to make their presence felt at our next Commencement in June—'91, '96, '06, '16 and the School of Agriculture for '16, '86 and '01 are yet to be heard from, but we are hopeful that they will make through and complete the list. Special tables in the dining hall and other accommodations are planned for the reunions. Write in your wants. It is suggested that each class adopt some special ribbon, badge, cap or other distinctive mark to distinguish them from the ranks of all other people attending. It is further suggested that each class be prepared to entertain the crowd with special songs or stunts whenever occasion occurs. Cooperation of all Alumni and former students is expected in featuring these class reunions in order that they may be recognized as one of the important functions of future Commencements.

It is now planned that the final function, Saturday night, commonly known as the Alumni Dance, shall take on the nature of an Alumni Jollification. At this time each class holding a reunion this year is expected to entertain the crowd for a few minutes by some song or stunt. Outlaw classes and local State Clubs are also hereby warned to come prepared to furnish a part of the program. Let us all plan to stay to this fun making social event and see who can make the biggest hit while we rest between dances or partake of light refreshments.

The Secretary will be pleased to receive suggestions from anyone for making this event a big number on the program.

THREE NEW ALUMNI GROUPS ORGANIZED, NOW MAKING NINE

Three local Alumni groups were organized last week. These groups are the New York State, Bridgeport, Danbury, and Winsted.

The Danbury group met and organized April 21, and, unlike previous occasions, the meeting was not preceded by a banquet. No one seemed to miss the collation except as they counted their money after returning home, when their balance on hand was greater than it otherwise would have been. The time usually occupied by consuming food provided additional opportunity to remove old acquaintances and farm new ones.

Twenty-five people attended the Danbury meeting and listened with interest to what other groups were organizing and what they were doing. Everyone was much impressed with a talk on Extension work by Director Baker, the greatest interest, however, was centered around a talk by President Beach on "Recent Developments and Needs of the College." President Beach, in response to questions, told of the status of the College appropriations which are before the present legislature.

Professor H. L. Garrigus also attended this meeting and spoke humorously about the "Stone Age," when Storrs students worked for eight cents per hour, picking up stones on the farm. He also spoke of his experiences in Connecticut along Animal Husbandry lines.

A business meeting followed during which a local organization was formed. The officers elected were Harold A. Brundage, S. '13, President; G. G. Hallock, '96, Vice-President; Douglas Evans, '20, Secretary-Treasurer.

The Executive Committee, comprised of the officers, was instructed to work out plans for interesting students in C. A. C., to correct the lists of names and addresses of members in the Bridgeport area, and developing plans to have the local group represented at Commencement.

The next meeting of the Bridgeport group will be held at the office of the Mitchell Dairy Company, Friday evening, May 20, Seeley and Morgan furnishing refreshments.

The Winsted meeting was held in one of the Conference rooms at the Y. M. C. A. with about twenty in attendance. For the number of people in the area this was probably the best attended of any meeting to date.

A program similar to that at Bridgeport was carried out. History and development of other local groups was presented by Ralph Avellir.

For reference and convenience of readers of "The Campus," the following list has been prepared. When you want to know about the local in your area write the Secretary of your group. When you have some information you think he might want, write the Secretary. Whenever you have any time to yourself, write the Secretary. Keep in touch with the activities of your class-mates and the college.

STATE GRANGE OFFICES HELD BY AGGIE MEN

That the State Grange is well spirited with Aggie men and that their worth is receiving due merit is shown by the number of state and local offices held by sons of C. A. C. The offices held are as follows:

Lecturer, C. A. Wheeler, '88, Storrs; Assistant Steward, Louis Toller, Southington; Deputy, Arthur P. Hargreaves, '13, Kent; Auditing Committee, Sherman W. Eddy, Ex.-'96, Exon.

C. A. C. Men Who Are Masters of County and Local Groups

Albert G. Clark, Excedo Pomona, No. 7; John H. R. Bishop, Cheshire Grange, No. 23; R. G. Tryon, Lanesborough Grange, No. 26; Earl Jewett, Little River Grange, No. 96; Geo. B. Durham, Mansfield Grange, No. 61; Leigh D. Miner, Bristol Grange, No. 118; Frank H. Peet, Kent Grange, No. 154; Benj. P. Davis, Franklin Grange, No. 184.

STATE ROAD TO COLLEGE

This legislature has voted that the state road leading from Storrs to Willy shall become a part of the trunk line system of the State, also that a state road shall be constructed from North Coventry to Warrenville connecting with Storrs at Mansfield Four Corners and become a part of the same system. So, boys, your alumni roads committee say you are going to get a state road to Hartford some day.

DO YOU SUBSCRIBE TO "THE CAMPUS"?

Less than two hundred alumni out of over three thousand are now subscribing to "The Campus." Better plan to subscribe: Deputy, Frank Peet, '13, Kent; Auditing Committee, Sherman W. Eddy, Ex.-'96, Aven.

President of the State Alumni Association, while President Bond told of the Recent Developments and Needs of the College. When the group organized the following officers were elected: Nelson White, '12, President, L. A. Dickerson, Vice-President; Eleanor Moss, '18, Secretary and Treasurer.

H. G. Manchester '91 was chairman of the local organization committee and thru his persistence light refreshments were provided. With the organization of last week practically all of the area west of the Connecticut River is now covered, and it is hoped that four groups in the eastern part of the state will be organized between now and Commencement.
SCOVILLE TO ADDRESS COLLEGE ASSEMBLY

Robert I. Scoville who has recently spent several months studying live-stock condition in South America, will speak at College Assembly on May 25 on his recent observations in Latin America. Mr. Scoville is a trustee of the College, a prominent Connecticut farmer and a breeder of Guernsey cattle. He is actively interested in livestock promotion and is one of the honorary charter members of the Block and Bridle Club, which has been active in getting him to speak before the student body at this time.

The first annual banquet of the Block and Bridle Club will be held at the Dining Hall that evening at 8:00 o'clock. Mr. Scoville and several other prominent livestock breeders will be guests.

Lamb chops raised on the college farm will be the attraction on the menu. This affair will end the activities of the club for the year.

At a recent meeting of the organization it was voted to petition the National Club for a state charter. A representative will be sent to the annual meeting of the National next September.
